

Wings of Angels

By

Michael Malak

Michael Malak was born in Newport Beach California in the late 60's; he did not know it at the time but his Art teacher was teaching him all the basics about foreground, shadow and perspective; pushing further and further his knowledge in artistic techniques, which he much later applied to his photography.

He has always had a love affair with the 1930/40's period, when "Made in America" meant something, which he has so creatively combined with modern day women to create a very distinctive look and feel of the 1940's style of photography for which George Hurrell is so well known and respected. His attention to detail is apparent in all parts of his process; he owns many artefacts from the period that together with "old style" lighting and post production techniques achieve a unique vintage yet modern feel to his photographs.

He has created "Wings of Angels" a compilation book of WWII Aircrafts and Pinups in memory of his Grand Father who served in the war and dedicates a proportion of his earnings to the "War Veterans Fund". The book is a large format 300 page coffee table book published by Schiffer Publishing release date October/November 2013. Inside you will find not only stunning photography, but technical details about the various featured Aircrafts, 13 in all and just as many Pinups, in colour, black & white and sepia. We will have the pleasure of presenting in "avant-première", some of his fabulous photography.
